

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

REPORT.

To the Honorable the Legislature of the State of New York :

The Regents of the University, as Trustees of the State Library, respectfully submit their Sixty-fourth Annual Report.

The general growth and prosperity of the library have continued uninterruptedly during the past year. Increasing embarrassment has been felt in finding space in the present quarters for the proper display or even disposal of the books and pamphlets of the library. Some immediate relief is absolutely necessary, which for the present may best be afforded by a room for storage of duplicates and unclassified library material. This, it is hoped, may be obtained in the new capitol, so that when the permanent halls for the library shall be completed, the transfer thither may be easy. The policy of making the general library more distinctively, but by no means exclusively, a library of American history, has been pursued carefully during the past year. Care is taken to gather up the material which may furnish the original sources of history in the future. All local histories and biographies and genealogies which may supply facts for the future historian, are, as far as possible, secured. An extensive system of exchanges for obtaining such material is carried on both in this country and in Europe.

The subject-index catalogue of the general library, which has been in course of preparation for a number of years, is essentially complete and is now in course of being printed. Its completion and publication will aid greatly in the ready and effective use of the books in this collection.

The law library is enriched each year by the addition of all important reports and by the documents and session laws of nearly every state in the Union. Its use by the courts of the state and the lawyers and legislators in the performance of their duties has been greater during the past year than at any preceding period. For important information as to this department of the library reference is made to the statement by the librarian in charge. The work on the subject-index for this library is in progress, but will require a considerable time for its proper completion. It is believed by the trustees that this will be, especially to the members of the legislature, of great service in facilitating inquiry into the various subjects which require investigation in legislation.

The accessions and present condition of the library are shown in the following statement :

At the close of the year 1880, the volumes contained in the general library were as follows.....	81, 703
In the law library.....	32, 309

114,012

During the year 1881, there were added :
To the general library.....	1, 771
To the law library.....	917

2,688

At the close of the year 1881 :
In the general library.....	83,474
In the law library.....	33,226

116,700

Of the additions made to the library there were :
Acquired by purchase.....	1,278
Acquired by donation or exchange.....	1,410

Total..... 2,688

The legislature of 1881 authorized the trustees of the library to procure the arranging and indexing of the Clinton papers and other historical papers in the library. They were fortunate in being able to appoint for this interesting and important work a gentleman who by learning, experience and family traditions, is especially qualified for the task. George W. Clinton, the son of the second Governor Clinton and a grand-nephew of the first, has entered upon the work of studying and arranging these papers with patriotic as well as filial zeal. The report of his progress and of the scope and prospects of the work is appended to this report. There are twenty-three volumes of the Clinton papers. Judge Clinton has undertaken as a first step of his work to go over these volumes and make entry of every name and important fact for the purposes of a general index. In this preliminary task he has gone over eight of these volumes. Besides the index which he thus has under way, he proposed to make extended annotations from other sources explanatory of the facts referred to more or less obscurely in the text. This careful and intelligent study of these original documents cannot fail to throw an important light on many of the events in the early history of the state.

By chapter 120 of the Laws of 1881, certain enumerated documents in the custody of the Secretary of State and of the Comptroller, are transferred to the charge of the trustees of the State Library. The legislature not having made provision for the expense of the transfer and the care of these documents they have been suffered to remain up to the present in charge of the former officers, and the clerk in charge, Mr. B. Fernow, still remains responsible to the Secretary of State. He has, however, prepared a statement with reference to these papers which is appended to this report and to which reference is here made.

The trustees of the State Library are the trustees of the law libraries at Syracuse and Rochester, and the law libraries at Brooklyn and Buffalo are required by law to make annual reports to this board. From these reports the following statement of the condition of these libraries is derived :

	Volumes Dec., 1880.	Volumes added during 1881.	Volumes Dec., 1881.
Syracuse law library.....	8,948	212	9,160
Rochester law library.....	10,678	130	10,808
Brooklyn law library.....
Buffalo law library.....

The list of additions made to the library is herewith appended to this report.

Respectfully submitted,

DAVID MURRAY,
Secretary.

H. R. PIERSON,
Chancellor.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN OF THE GENERAL LIBRARY.

To the Regents of the University as trustees of the State Library :

In accordance with your resolution passed January 14, 1881, I submit a report on the general library for the year ending December 31, 1881.

In the general library during the year 1881, the principal work in the library, in addition to the ordinary work, has been the preparation of a supplementary subject-index to the subject-index of 1872, embracing the ten years following that index, with thousands of references for subjects contained in volumes previously in the library. The new volume will appear in the course of the summer of 1882 and will make a volume it is believed of over four hundred pages.

The additions to the general library have been less in number than the additions of the several years previous. Among the reasons by which this may be accounted for there are two prominent ones: one is the production in states of the Union, both east and west, of exceedingly voluminous county histories, and the purchase of these quartos, frequently counting more than a thousand pages each, has absorbed more than five hundred dollars of the annual appropriation by the state. The other reason is that a larger amount of money has been paid during the year for rare and costly books than in some previous years. Thus the ninety-five quarto volumes of the publications of the Maitland Club were secured. Of these volumes not more than seventy-five copies of most of them were printed, and of a considerable number not more than fifty copies, and all of the volumes have a historical value in illustrating the history of Great Britain. This diminution in the number of books added has been less regretted because we have not as yet secured the necessary and increased space to accommodate the larger number. We have reason to expect that during the winter we shall be provided with temporary accommodation in a room of the new capitol for the storage of such books of the library as are least in demand, and thus secure a double advantage—the ability to increase the amount of our annual purchases and to obtain at the same time shelf-room for them.

Respectfully submitted,

HENRY A. HOMES,
Librarian of the General Library.

STATE LIBRARY, Jan., 1882.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN OF THE LAW LIBRARY.

To the Regents of the University of the State of New York :

GENTLEMEN — The number of volumes added to the law department of the library during the year 1881, is 917, which is fully equal to the average of the three preceding years, if we exclude special purchases of British parliamentary papers that are embraced in the accessions of those years.

Important additions have been made of American and British reports and statutes, and of standard elementary works. The usual number of publications have been received under the system of inter-state and foreign exchange.

During the past year the works in this department have been in daily use by readers in the library hall. In addition thereto and under the provisions of existing law, upwards of 3,000 volumes have been delivered to the judges of the courts, state officers, members of the legislature and members of the bar when engaged in the argument or trial of causes, for temporary use in the exercise of their respective official duties.

The enforcement of the ordinance of 1879 which prohibits the "occupation of the room of this department as a study and reading room and the use of its volumes as text-books by law students," has promoted the convenience of the "officers of the government, the courts and the bar," in their use of the volumes.

Considerable progress has been made in the preparation of the subject-index catalogue authorized by chap. 306 of the Laws of 1881. The labor of preparing the catalogue is somewhat greater than was anticipated, by reason of the disclosure as the work progresses, of a large number of typographical errors in the catalogues of 1855 and 1865, to correct which, requires an actual examination of the volumes upon the shelves. The work will be ready for the printer during the year 1883, and will embrace all the publications contained in the law department at the close of the present year. Specimen subjects of the proposed catalogue are herewith submitted, which will give a general idea of the classification, arrangement and form of titles, and serve to illustrate in some degree the value of the work to those for whom this department of the library was established and is maintained. It will be observed that these specimens are but fragments and in no manner represent either the completeness or the typography of the catalogue as it will finally appear.

Respectfully submitted,

STEPHEN B. GRISWOLD,
Librarian of the Law Library.

REPORT.

To the Trustees of the New York State Library :

I have the honor of submitting the following statement as to the condition of the historical records, transferred to the care of your Honorable body from the offices of the Secretary of State and of the Comptroller, by chapter 120, Laws of 1881.

Lack of space in the State library has so far prevented the actual transfer of the rich collection of historical material, which is probably the largest owned by any one State in the Union, but also, unfortunately, one of the least known ; however, pursuant to the provisions of the quoted chapter of the Laws, the Honorable Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York as trustees of the State library, at their midsummer convocation, have honored me by entrusting the records in question to my care.

The earliest record preserved, an Indian deed for the present site of Hoboken, N. J., is dated July 12, 1630, and from that date down to August, 1664, the twenty-one volumes of Dutch records, containing about 12,000 entries, give an almost complete history of Dutch rule and of the government which first introduced upon the soil of New York European civilization and founded there courts, schools, churches and similar institutions for the benefit of its subjects. Of these twenty-one volumes three are the "Register of the Provincial Secretary," whose functions embraced all those of a modern notary public, clerk of a court of record, surrogate and member of the Governor's council. Seven volumes of "Council Minutes" give, with considerable gaps, the proceedings of the Director-General and his advisers as legislative, executive and judiciary council. Five volumes contain the correspondence between the Director-General and the home government or his subordinate officers in the province, two the records of land patents and deeds, and four more the ordinances for internal government, writs of appeal, records of Fort Orange (now Albany), and of the colony on the Delaware. All these records are written in the Dutch language and in the old Gothic hand of the seventeenth century, as unintelligible as hieroglyphics or Chinese characters are to most of us. The few documents written in English by George Baxter, the English secretary of the province, are even harder to decipher, as the style of writing in England just then undergoing a change, had not yet reached the fluency of the later current hand, while it had lost the distinctness of the Gothic.

The English records of this series, known as the "New York Colonial Manuscripts," follow in eighty-four volumes closely upon the Dutch period in the panorama of the Colony's internal development. The view through these "Colonial Manuscripts" (English) is, however, incomplete, as they contain only the letters, reports, petitions, etc., upon which the executive government of the province based their action. The light needed for a clearer view is given by the forty-four volumes of General Entries, Orders in Council, Minutes of the Courts of Assizes, Council Minutes and Treasurer's Accounts. These latter records are in bound volumes of from 200 to 400 pages each and as yet neither indexed nor calendared, while the first-mentioned series of New York Colonial Manuscripts, recovered from heaps of loose files of papers and neatly put up in large folio volumes, each document being given a stub and cover page, were indexed and calendared with great care by the late Dr. O'Callaghan. The eighty-four volumes of New York Colonial Manuscripts (English) contain about 25,000 different papers, mostly written in the English language, although there are some in French, Spanish, German, Dutch and Danish. The forty-four volumes of General Entries, etc., are of course all in English.

Governor Dongan was, by his instructions of May 29, 1686 authorized and directed to issue marriage licenses, which authorization was continued from time to time to the succeeding governors until the Revolution. The first licenses are recorded scatteringly in "General Entries" and "Orders in Council," etc. Their number increasing with the influx of population, the secretary of the province was compelled to keep a separate register of marriage bonds, executed before the license could be given. I have under my charge forty bound volumes containing about 11,000 of these bonds, given from 1686 to 1775. Not all the matrimonial engagements entered into by the inhabitants of the province are represented by these bonds; the Quakers, for instance, objected to giving such a bond and many others lived too far from the secretary's office to execute it; their marriages are recorded only in the registers of their respective churches.

When the Palatines were compelled to leave their homes on the Rhine, many children either arrived in this country as orphans or lost their parents soon after their arrival. For their benefit Governor Hunter proposed in 1710 that such children should be bound out to serve such parties as certain commissioners approved and accepted the bond of. The volume "Indentures of Palatine Children," contains the record of eighty-four of these transactions during the years 1710 and 1711.

A similar paternal desire, superinduced upon political foresight, led to the royal proclamation of October 7, 1763, regulating the trade with the Indians in such a manner that they would not desert the British interest, and requiring all persons who wished to go into the Indian country to trade, to execute a bond. About four hundred of such bonds, executed during the years 1765 to 1771, are bound in two volumes, called "Indian Traders' Bonds."

The volume "The Duke's Laws, 1674," contains the regulations made by the delegates of the Long Island settlements in 1665 and approved by the Duke of York. Our copy is signed by the Duke of York and certified to by his secretary, Wren. These regulations were at first in force only on Long Island and in New York city and were introduced in other parts of the colony from 1673 to 1676.

The acts passed by the first assembly of the colony of New York in 1683-4, are preserved in the volume called "Dongan's Laws," and two volumes contain the bills which failed to become laws during the time from 1685 to 1732.

The contents of the next three volumes are shown by their titles: 1. Minutes of the Commissioners to settle the boundaries between Rhode Island and Massachusetts, 1741. 2. Minutes of the Commissioners to re-examine the controversy between Connecticut and the Mohegan Indians, 1743. 3. Collection of evidence in vindication of the territorial rights of New York against the claims of the New England colonies, 1750.

An insight into the commercial history of New York is given by thirty-three volumes of manifests entered at the New York custom-house from 1737 to 1774, ten volumes of entry-books, also of the New York custom-house from 1728 to 1769, seven volumes of ship-master's bonds from 1750 to 1766.

This ends the list of original records of the Province of New-Netherland and New York. The collection of Colonial documents was completed about forty years ago by the copies of original papers in the archives of England, Holland and France, procured by Mr. J. Romeyn Broadhead and edited by him and Dr. O'Callaghan, in eleven volumes, under the title of "Documents relating to the Colonial History of New York." These copies fill eighty large octavo volumes.

Of papers relating to the Revolutionary period there are ten volumes, "Journal of the New York Convention and Committee of Safety, 1776-8," and twelve "Revolutionary Papers, 1775-7," both published in two volumes under the title of "Journal of the New York Convention." These twenty-two volumes are preserved in the same manner as the New York Colonial Manuscripts, while the balance of papers covering this period are bound solidly in twenty-three more volumes of ledger size and partly published in two volumes, called "Calendar of New York Historical Manuscripts, Revolutionary Papers." Further material for the history of the Revolution may be found in forty-three volumes of "Assembly Papers, 1777-1831," fourteen volumes "Minutes of the Council of Appointment, 1777-1821," five volumes "Minutes of the Council of Revision, 1778-1824" and about 250 bundles of papers relating to the proceedings of the Council of Appointment. Ten volumes "Accounts of Certificates issued by the State Treasurer," three of "New York Quartermasters' Accounts and Journal, 1780-1785," one "Revolutionary Prisoner's Pay-roll," one "Pay-roll, New York Line," and one "Military Register, 1778-82," give information concerning the New York Contingent to the Army of the U. S. during the Revolution, while the property taken from Tories in 1777-1779 and 1782, is accounted for in two volumes.

The historian of the inner development of the State during the first half century of its existence will find ample material in the above-mentioned Assembly Papers, etc., and further in two volumes relating to the Vermont Controversy, 1777 and 1779, four of miscellaneous papers relating to frontiers, Onondaga salt works, Canadian sympathizers, anti-rent war, boundaries, etc., one volume entitled "Onondaga Claims," four "Onondaga Springs," and a large number of unbound files of election returns from 1800 to 1837.

The papers relating to the division of towns and counties, incorporation of cities and villages, construction of canals, rivers, public highways and other topics, deposited in five boxes and placed in one of the committee rooms of the old capitol by a commission appointed by the assembly in 1830, are unfortunately lost, and I have good reason to believe through the dishonesty of a former servant of the State, as the boxes mentioned in the report of the commission are still in the old capitol but empty, while papers evidently taken from these boxes were shown me by a citizen of this place to whom they had been given with his endorsed compliments by a former employee of the State.

As the law now stands (chapter 140 of the Laws of 1837) all petitions and papers presented to the senate and assembly are to be kept on file in each of the houses where they were originally presented. For some years past it has been customary to deliver some of these papers to the librarian of your library, but as this was done, I believe, only to relieve the crowded document rooms of the legislature in the old capitol, and as I have no authority to make further investigations it cannot be ascertained whether all of the legislative papers, which have a bearing on the history of the State, are preserved. It is our duty to future generations to show them the motives of our present actions if we wish them to be proud of their forefathers and fathers. It would prevent the committee rooms of the legislature and the store rooms from being littered and filled with what many are at present inclined to call an objectionable nuisance, but among which there may be papers worth a great deal to the following generations, and it would increase only slightly the duties of this department, without probably increasing the expenses, if the legislature were to direct that all papers (petitions, reports, etc.), which are presented to either House or to a committee of either, shall be preserved during the session by the clerks of the two Houses, and after its close delivered to this department. I beg to submit this suggestion to the consideration of your Honorable body.

I have stated above how much of this vast collection of historical material, or rather how little, comparatively, has been made accessible to the general public by publication up to 1866. Since that year I have translated and edited in 1877, under direction of Hon. John Bigelow, then Secretary of State, a volume of documents relating to the colonization of the territory now comprising the State of Delaware, and parts of New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Last year I published in like manner, under the direction of the Hon. Joseph

B. Carr, the present Secretary of State, a volume of documents relating to the settlements on Hudson's and Mohawk rivers, and have translated for like publication the documents relating to the colonization of Long Island, the development of the cities of New York and Albany, and the relations of this colony with those of New England, of Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

New York has as well in colonial as in Revolutionary times, been the mainstay of the English-speaking part of this continent, and her history is so closely interwoven with that of the other States that the historical publications, few in number as they have hitherto been, are constantly cited and extracts reprinted in those of other States, as in Volume VII of Pennsylvania Archives, 2d series, where about one half of Volume XII of our own colonial documents are reprinted, and in Volume I, New Jersey Archives, which extracts freely from the same and preceding volumes. Pennsylvania has exhausted her colonial material and is now publishing the records of her youthful existence as a State. New Jersey has almost reached the end of her colonial period; Massachusetts and Connecticut had published all their colonial records almost before New York began the publication of hers, and are now authorizing the cities and towns in their limits to publish their records.

The correspondence of this department goes to show that the interest of the people of the State and of natives of New York or descendants of New Yorkers in other States, in historical matters is growing. It is true many inquiries made relate only to family history, but I have found during the four years in which I have had the charge of these records, that research into a man's family history frequently leads him into other wider historical researches benefiting the people at large. When the history of this State is thoroughly known, no man will be ashamed to call himself a son of New York, as a prominent merchant said of himself a few years ago, "because she had no record."

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,

Your very obedient servant,

BERTHOLD FERNOW.

In charge of the Hist. Records.

REPORT ON THE GEORGE CLINTON PAPERS.

BY GEORGE W. CLINTON.

To the Regents of the University of the State of New York :

My acceptance of your appointment as "editor in charge of the work of arranging and indexing the Clinton manuscripts and other State papers belonging to the State and deposited in the State Library," made a change of residence absolutely necessary, and, as soon as possible, I returned to this city of my youth and entered upon my new duties. Upon an almost momentary consideration of the work defined by the statute, I perceived that a due execution of the grand scheme of the Legislature demanded an indexing of the George Clinton papers at the very outset—that the making of this index would consume much time, and that, though the labor might, by many good people, be considered as almost purely clerical, I could not, conscientiously, intrust it to any one else. In order to appreciate and arrange such a mass of papers as this, somewhat miscellaneous in their character as they are, and yet, in the main, bearing as they do upon those momentous questions of policy and problems of civil liberty and free government which our fathers solved by their wisdom and decided by the sword, one must have such an intimate and thorough acquaintance with them as can be most perfectly acquired only by actual manipulation and study. To this task, therefore, I have, so far, devoted all or nearly all my time, hoping that, when the essential preliminary work is over, I may be permitted, by research and annotation, to supply explanatory facts and make more clear the title of our statesmen to fame, and of our State to honor.

The George Clinton papers are calendared. In other words, they are numbered consecutively, and placed in twenty-three folio volumes, in the order of time, and each volume contains a list of the numbers it contains and a brief note of the contents of the paper or papers designated by such number. A calendar, however meritorious, and however useful it may be to the deeply read and practical annalist or historian, can be of very little service to the raw student and the casual searcher. It wants fullness and minuteness, omits minor names, and takes no notice of the petty seeming facts and incidents which are so great to little men, and which so often flavor common life, cause great events and color history. An index ought, like a great river, the carrier of commerce and creator of fertility, to be "without overflowing, full." It ought to be so framed as to yield readily the answer, if there be one in the body of the papers, to every question of every reasonable questioner, though he be not technical nor learned. The Clinton papers, like all old manuscripts, present, occasionally, the usual obstacles to mastering them, such as unfamiliar and almost undecipherable writing, faded ink, spelling which is neither phonetic nor uniform nor conformed to any rule, and their assumption by their writers of a knowledge, by their immediate readers, of events and names and incidents, which they have unexpressed and are wholly unknown to us. The calendar comprises 6,307 numbers. Of these I have carefully perused 2,736, and taken notes from them, under what seemed to me at the time appropriate heads for the index, of every name and incident and matter which ought, in my judgment, to enter into it. When all the numbers have been thus dealt with, then will come the pleasant but laborious task of arranging the great mass of divers matters, and forming it, with reasonable compression, into an index. After that will come the collecting of suppletory matter, and the preparing of notes of an explanatory nature, to be drawn mainly from our provincial and revolutionary statutes, published histories, local and general, biographies, State papers and historical collections. Then succeeds the great work of ascertaining what other State papers exist in the library, indexing any that may need it, and preparing a lucid and orderly synopsis of the whole.

I have, in my exploration, just entered upon the year 1780, a time when nature herself, in her appointed course, fought bitterly against us, and great hearts were anxious exceedingly, and even our stout-hearted governor, in his depression, wrote thus to Robert L. Livingston: "I have not felt equal distress at the situation of our affairs since the commencement of the war." Heaven, rather than their own wisdom or valor, gave the Confederacy a happy deliverance and a triumph, the harbinger of freedom for all our race.

Having scrutinized 2,736 numbers only, any remark I have made or may make as to the quality or importance of the collection must be confined to them. The papers are much more numerous than the numbers. They comprise a very large number of the drafts of George Clinton's answers to correspondents. When blank space enough was left in a letter to him, he was very sure, from economy or some notion of convenience, to draft his answer thereon, and the letter and answer make one number of the calendar. Then again the calendar often groups under one number several papers, and they are often replete with incidental matters, essential to an index, of which it takes no notice. A paper or papers, calendared as one number, seldom requires less than three entries, and sometimes requires from ten to one hundred entries for the index.

This collection is very far from presenting a continuous history, State or national, and letters (I trust not irrecoverable) are sometimes wanting, which are, in themselves, necessary to the understanding of papers which are present, or relate to projects or transactions of importance, or which, whether of intrinsic importance or not, would be dear to us for the writer's sake. By and bye I may make a list of the more important of these lacking letters, and seek your aid and counsel for obtaining them. In the meantime accept, I pray you, these examples to show my meaning. By a letter from John McKesson to George Clinton, dated November 3, 1776, it appears that Clinton had applied, through him, to the Council of Safety for leave to resign his command, and that "the true reasons" for the request were not stated to the council; but it also seems apparent that these reasons were contained in a letter to McKesson, and that letter is not among the papers. On the 8th of March, 1778, George Clinton acknowledged the receipt of two letters from La Fayette, neither of which appears in the collection. Walter Butler's "insolent letter" to Schuyler, touching the Cherry Valley prisoners, is not, although Gen. James Clinton's dignified answer and rebuke of it is among the papers. Charles Thompson, the secretary of Congress, on the 1st of February, 1780, reminds George Clinton that he had made a request in his letter of the 24th of November, which remains unanswered, and states that it was preferred solely for the public service. I would like to know what the request was; neither it nor the letter of November 24th appear in the collection. Several letters of Washington to George Clinton are wanting; of which I especially regret the absence of one or two in which it seems he must have stated some grand movement he had in contemplation against the enemy, but which is not disclosed in George Clinton's answers assuring him of hearty and strong co-operation.

But, making all allowance for its defect and deficiencies, there is very much of value in this collection. The glory and security of a State rests in the great body of its people; and in these papers we have, it seems to me, an almost living presentment of a people of diverse creeds and many nationalities, bound together by a common love of liberty, and who, in its assertion, voluntarily submitted to exactions and oppressions far more onerous than those which drove them to revolt. They show us that people feeding the northern army, which must else have starved or been disbanded. In the very heat of a most cruel war—a war raging on their frontiers and penetrating almost to the doors of their council house—that people framed a Constitution so grand, so equal, so protective of human rights, that philosophy everywhere applauded it, and free States took it for their model. Of them it could not be said inter arma leges silent; but they had the wisdom to fit their laws to the dangers and necessities of their time, and bowed their necks to a yoke, which, but for the sake of triumph in the end, would have been far more galling than that of any king or foreign parliament. These papers contain too some evidences of the purity and greatness of our statesmen, which, I am pretty confident, have not been given to the public. But I must not dwell upon such topics. I anticipate finding equally good things in the unexamined papers. I am very confident that although the whole collection may add little or nothing to the main facts of our history, and fail to change in the least our estimates of the chief men of our revolution, it will contribute much matter of deep interest to the philosophy of history, and very much to the materials for the biographies of less distinguished persons, render important aid to many inquirers into the genealogies of their families, and confirm the respect due to New York for her distinguished services to her sister States and to the Confederacy, not only in war, but in laying broad and deep the foundation of human liberty and of our perpetual union.
